

VACCINE RESOURCE BUNDLE

For months, employers have been asking themselves if they should mandate vaccines for their employees. Some had no choice and are already subject to state or federal vaccination requirements, others have organizational leadership pushing to move ahead, and some are wanting to put the groundwork in place, should a federal mandate be enacted for their workforce. No matter what the circumstances, we all need a foundation and model forms for a plan.

Our Vaccine Resource Bundle, created in collaboration with recognized leaders in employment law at Littler, is available at no cost to TPG clients and includes the tools you need to get started. The bundle includes essential elements such as a policy, medical certification form for employees seeking an exemption, approval/denial forms for accommodation requests, and much more, plus pertinent federal, state, and local legislative updates.

The Partners Group continues to provide expert consultative services for vaccination programs and is now pleased to offer the resources you need to create and deploy a vaccination program at your workplace. Together, we'll devise practical resolutions and problem-solving tactics to navigate the complex vaccine environment.
